Albufera is located between Port Pollensa and the old town of Alcudia, also known as the "fidelísima" (the most faithful) during the Reconquista (the conquest of the Iberian Peninsula from the Muslims), is a beautiful small town that still keeps its Muslim and Roman origins. To find such an authentic Mediterranean atmosphere, where life is lived at a slower pace, is quite rare in an international tourist center like the North of Majorca. Everything here is made to be tasted and enjoyed. In Alcudia we somehow still live nowadays as in the past. Within the Medieval walls, the main square is the heart of the town. Everything leads you there and it is indeed the main meeting point with restaurants and cafes all around. Along its narrow streets we discover the two main gates: puerta de Xara y puerta de San Sebastià, as well as Sant Jaume's church, right next to the old Roman town of Pollentia that was once the Capital of the Balearic Islands. Every Tuesday and Sunday the peacefulness is broken by the open market where vegetables, flowers and all kind of typical Majorcan delicacies are sold in a colorful atmosphere.

At walking distance from the 'old city' of Alcudia there are several small beaches like Barcarés and El Mal Pas, less crowded and equally beautiful.

The once small fishing port of Port Pollensa (or Port de Pollença in Majorcan language) is nowadays one of the main holiday destinations in Northern Majorca. With a privileged location between the sea and the mountains, it offers all kind of modern services for tourists like shops, supermarkets and restaurants, but also beautiful beaches and trekking paths to enjoy all the beauty of this side of the island.
