The coves of Alcanada are the most beautiful and natural of all Alcudia and the most exclusive, to enjoy the Mediterranean nature in all its splendor. Most of them are rocky beaches populated by posidonia, native balearic seaweed and marine fauna, but there are also some with sand.
On the coast of Alcanada we will always have in sight the mythical island of the lighthouse or island of the lighthouse, of mid-nineteenth century, and also the majestic towers of the old thermal power station of Gesa.
Among the heritage of Alcanada we will also find ´sa torre major´, a 16th century watch tower and ´Sa Bassa Blanca´, a wonderful property designed by the Egyptian architect Hassan Fathy which is currently a museum and home to the Yannick and Ben Jakober Foundation .
Alcanada or Alcanada beach is about 3.5 km from Alcudia, located on the peninsula des Cap des Pinar, guarded by is Puig de sa Madona of about 151m high. There is also the island of Alcanada where the lighthouse is very characteristic.
The crystal-clear beach is quiet and with boulders. Along this will see areas of pine trees that give shade on sunny days. And a great extension where families gather and spend the day between games, baths and naps in the shade.
